

SOC 29001: From Archives to Algorithms.

Practicum in Historical Sociology

John Levi Martin and Benjamin Rohr
Spring 2020 T/TR 9:30-10:50

What do historical sociologists do all day? This practicum class has the answer.

Read inspiring work in historical sociology, learn core theoretical problems and methodological solutions, apply them both in a large collective project as well as in your own independent research, and see what collaborative work in the social sciences looks like. Thanks to the generous support of the College Curricular Innovation Fund, the class will include a paid trip to the New York State Archives in Albany.

Scan the QR code
for the syllabus.

